

Prompt:

A Write Around Portland Community Workshop

Join us for a weekly hands-on workshop devoted to generative writing and the transformative power of writing in community.

Based on the acclaimed Write Around Portland model, this dynamic workshop incorporates many of our favorite writing exercises designed to inspire the writing life, including freewriting; work with writing elements; strength-building feedback and early-draft revision. The workshop will cap off with a community reading.

Prompt: A Write Around Portland Community Workshop

Meets Mondays for 10 weeks: June 16 - August 18, 2008

6:30 - 8:30pm

Powell's City of Books, 1005 W. Burnside

$285 (includes free parking, snacks and access to the "bowels of Powells")

Prompt facilitator Robyn Steely is the Executive Director of Write Around Portland. She has facilitated writing workshops for veterans, incarcerated men and women, teen girls in drug and alcohol treatment, and low income adults as well as real estate agents, health care providers and teachers. She has trained more than 70 individuals to become Write Around Portland facilitators. In addition, Robyn has led trainings for statewide and national organizations, and she was awarded the Skidmore Prize for outstanding work in the nonprofit sector.

All proceeds from Prompt go directly toward funding Write Around Portland workshops and programs for people affected by HIV/AIDS, veterans living with PTSD, people with mental illness, seniors living on a low income, teen parents and many others.

Pre-registration is required. For more information about Prompt and to register, go to www.writearound.org or call 503.796.9224.