Writing is our resistance.

Spring Fundraising Campaign: May 15 – June 30

Why Your Voice Matters

This spring, we're raising $30,000 to continue offering free, inclusive writing groups and publish powerful stories from our community. We can't do this alone, we need your help to spread the word. Your support will amplify underheard voices and keep this work alive.

We need your help to spread the word!

1. Post on social media and tag @WriteAroundPDX

Share a personal message about why you support Write Around Portland. Here's an example:

@WriteAroundPDX helped me find my voice as a writer and connected me to my community in Portland. They use creative writing to foster healing and build stronger, safer communities. Right now, nonprofits can't rely on federal funding, we must be the ones to help propel organizations like Write Around Portland. Please donate during their spring campaign to help them continue their mission. Go to writearound.org/springcampaign to learn more.

2. Email or text your network

Sample message:

*Dear [friend's name],
I'm supporting Write Around Portland's spring campaign because their work has made a meaningful difference in my life. Their work of using creative writing to help people heal and connect is powerful and necessary. Can you donate during their spring fundraising campaign in to help them create more safe, inclusive spaces? Here's the link: writearound.org/springcampaign
Thank you!*

3. Follow, like, and repost our content on social media

Engaging with our social media content helps immensely! It may not seem like much, but it boosts our standing with the various algorithms and gets our message out to more people and new audiences.
